TRULY AUTHENTIC

~ since 1981 ~

Barbarian has been making rugby jerseys since 1981 and even to this day, many people do not know that we actually knit our own fabric and manufacture the garments right here, in Canada. We employ not only locally, but we also use dozens of suppliers from all over North America, including the use of the world’s highest grade cotton grown in the U.S. Delta Region.

Our ability to make short custom production runs grew from our capacity to make traditional - on-field - game cotton jerseys... no other fashion worn rugby shirt on the market today can make that claim. Synonymous with quality and built to game day specifications, Barbarian is one of the few truly authentic brands of rugby apparel.

Heat sealing is a process of applying graphics to a garment using a special heat press that melts and seals the art onto the garment. This method allows us to use glitter flake, poly film or super TEK® application.

Silk Screen

Names, numbers and logos can all be silk screened into place to give the shirts a cutting edge look. Multi-coloured print can be applied to honour the integrity of complex logos and art. Pantone colours will need to be provided to ensure proper colour breakdown.

Applique

A combination of felt and twill letters are satin border stitched into place. This layering adds a traditional 3-dimensional look to the art and creates a feeling of luxury you only get from a high quality letter-man style piece.

Sewn Names & Logos

Using a variety of textures and fabrics, your name or logo can be applied anywhere on your shirt. We secure with a zig-zag stitch to allow stretch of the fabric and to make it washing machine friendly.

Cresting

Your custom artwork on a crest can be applied anywhere on your shirt. We single needle stitch the patch to make it washing machine friendly.
